Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

From statement (1) we learn that the equation of the line can be written as $Y = b^2X + b$.

From statement (2) we learn that the line goes through the point (40, 0), from that we can find the equation of the line by plugging the coordinate in the equation: $0 = b^2(40) + b$.

There is no need to solve it, both statements are sufficient to solve the problem.
